

The Analog Girl // Sometime Next Galaxy

"If Tricky's dark and brooding Maxinquaye album was launched into outer space on a rocket ship commanded by Björk, it might sound something like the Analog Girl." TIME MAGAZINE

"The Analog Girl is in a class of her own, going international with her brand of 'laptop rock'." TIME OUT

"The Analog Girl's electro punk xylophone beats are perfectly Portishead-esque." MONOCLE

"Sometime Next Galaxy alternately sounds like a video arcade as well as a dimly lit, outre hip club somewhere in Soho where you might meet Björk, a cosplay girl dressed up as Hello Kitty or a leather-clad bouncer all dancing together." THE STRAITS TIMES

"A steamy marriage of angst and art... Epic. Dizzying." GIANT ROBOT

Named by TIME magazine as one of 5 Music Acts To Watch in 2008 alongside Japanese musician Cornelius is Singapore-based electro-rock chanteuse The Analog Girl. "You've heard the hype and it's true" reveals The Straits Times about the enigmatic performer who is turning heads with her latest EP Sometime Next Galaxy. Mastered by Mandy Parnell in London who has worked with rock and pop luminaries like Feist, Sigur Ros and Depeche Mode, the sound on Sometime Next Galaxy is both lush and intergalactic. The pioneer in the local scene who defined the genre that is laptop rock, The Analog Girl first sprung onto the international spotlight when American sportswear giant Nike featured a track from her debut self-released, self-produced album The TV Is On on their European ad campaign Changing The Game in 2005. Since then her unique yet catchy brand of electro pop has caught the ears of many a pop culture royalty including award-winning graphic novelist Warren Ellis, legendary '80s synth pop maestros Orchestral Manoeuvres in the Dark (OMD), Asia's music icon Chris Ho and landed her a support slot with New York's outstanding electronic duo Telepathe. SomaFM's radio favourite Motionless has also been featured on NYLON TV for episodes featuring Kim Gordon (Sonic Youth) and Ladytron. Armed with her sexy MacBook Pro and whimsical machines, The Analog Girl headlined The Knitting Factory in New York and performed at Tonic curated by the noted free jazz/noise maestro Alan Licht - all these during her impressive 6-venue tour in support of her debut album The TV Is On. Taking her music from clubs to concert halls to art spaces, TAG has performed for famed British photographer Nick Knight's SHOWstudio in London, the Cirque Electrique in Paris, Soso Art Cafe in Sapporo, Labella in Shanghai and the MTV Asia Awards Voting Party in Singapore. Making her debut in Berlin at the 2009 Worldtronics Festival at Haus der Kulturen der Welt, The Analog Girl is fast becoming one of tomorrow's brightest stars to rock a different sound at a city near you.

Songs from Sometime Next Galaxy were first performed in London at SHOWstudio's REVUE, an outrageously hip party produced by Nick Knight's creative studio for Sony's Playstation 3. Dressed in a playful kimono with musical toys in hand, The Analog Girl delivered tracks from Sometime Next Galaxy, an EP about a love so strong that is however destined for some other time and space - love songs for the video game generation, electro dance floor sleaze for your Saturday night. All of which also rocked the Notting Hill Arts Club where The Analog Girl performed for Being Boiled, London's electro'fying night curated by Emily Strange of electro trio CLIENT fame. The bill even featured a rare DJ set by Martin Rushent, renown producer for Human League.

Always dreaming up new and innovative ways to showcase her music, The Analog Girl presented an extraordinary live performance at the Cirque Electrique in Paris with Stella improvising on trapeze and Thom swirling fire. "It was all so very surreal...performing electro-pop at an avant-garde circus in Paris out in an open field during summer overlooking the Montmarte..." In 2007, The Analog Girl was commissioned to write and perform an electronic soundtrack to the screening of the widely celebrated 1926 silent animated German film The Adventures Of Prince Achmed to a sell-out audience at the National Museum Of Singapore. Marrying vintage animation made out of silhouettes from paper cut-outs and modern electronic sounds was pure magic. Now catch The Analog Girl's songs on the very entertaining, funny but thought provoking documentary film Complaints Choir produced by Denmark's finest, Fine & Mellow.

A festival favourite, The Analog Girl has played at various international festivals including Resfest which featured live painting by Japanese graphic artist Imaitoonz of Dead Leaves (Production I.G.) fame. Other festivals include Spring Scream Music Festival (Taiwan), Ladyfest, ZoukOut (with Astreal) and Baybeats - the region's largest indie music festival which draws crowds of over 100,000 each year. The Analog Girl has also rocked the runway at the Singapore Fashion Festival with a live showcase for the Versus by Versace Spring/Summer 2005 Collection. In 2006, Heineken Music presented her highly-anticipated solo show in Kuala Lumpur to a full-house audience. Then in 2007, she shared the stage with Swedish electronic bossa nova act Koop at Free The Musique.

Over on the airwaves, The Analog Girl first invaded U.S. college radio with the infectious Motionless via the Buzzlighter CD which also featured music from other striking indie bands like The Fiery Furnaces and Ambulance LTD. She continues to intrigue the American audience with fresh singles from her latest EP Sometime Next Galaxy made possible by Roji Music, the indie label of love set up by the good people at Roji Tea Lounge in Syracuse, New York. You can also catch The Analog Girl's music videos on Pacha TV. A Featured Artist on Diesel-U-Music and Channel V's AMP, and music award nominee at the Nike StreetStyle Awards, The Analog Girl is enjoying a global fan base making The Analog Girl Asia's indie darling and the world's rising superstar.

x
/

x
/

x
/

x
/

x
/

Selected Gigography (Highlights)

"Meet The Analog Girl...with a sound as full as a live band." THE STRAITS TIMES

January 2010	Home Club w/ Telepathe (U.S.)	Singapore
December 2009	Streetlab Project Space	Amsterdam
November 2009	Worldtronics Festival at Haus Der Kulturen Der Welt	Berlin
April 2009	Spring Scream Music Festival + Bliss Club Taipei	Taiwan
August 2008	Baybeats Festival 2008 + Supperclub	Singapore
April 2008	Labella	Shanghai
September 2007	Free The Musique (alongside KOOP from Sweden, The Great Spy Experiment & Muon)	Singapore
August 2007	Cafe Pause	Tokyo
April 2007	SHOWstudio REVUE x Sony Playstation 3 Party	London
	Notting Hill Arts Club for CLIENT's Being Boiled (alongside Martin Rushent/Human League)	London
March 2007	The Adventures Of Prince Achmed (1926) at the National Museum Of Singapore Live original electronic soundtrack to the film screening of the classic 1926 silent animated film	Singapore
December 2006	ZoukOut (with Astreal) - the region's most famous international dance music festival	Singapore
April 2006	Heineken Music Lab	KL
	MTV Asia Awards Voting Party 2006	Singapore
Autumn 2005	Ladyfest	Singapore
Summer 2005	New York City Tour 2005 6-venue tour featuring live dates at the Knitting Factory (Main Stage Headliner), Mercury Lounge, Tonic, CBGB's 313 Gallery, Arlene's Grocery, 6s & 8s	New York
March 2005	Singapore Fashion Festival - Versus by Versace Spring/Summer 'live'	Singapore
Spring 2005	Nike ad campaign Changing The Game featuring The Analog Girl's cutting-edge track "Liquorice" kicks off in cities across Europe	Europe
Summer 2004	Europe Tour 2004
	The Spitz	London
	The Cirque Electrique / Le Palace	Paris
September 2003	Japan Debut / Opening of Keiko Miyata's Dangerous Pop Exhibition at Soso Art Cafe	Sapporo

And more at Singapore International Film Festival / gift_lab Tokyo / Night & Day Grand Opening / The Arts House / New Year's Countdown Party at the National Museum Of Singapore / ZoukOut / Rojak at 72-13 / Post-Museum / Rockstar Collective Block Party at Old School / Urbanklash at Bar None / RNDM / StreetStyle Awards / University Cultural Centre ++

Radiography

WFMU 91.1FM (NJ) / Radio-Indie-Pop (NYC) / WUSB (NY) / U.S. college radio stations / Resonance FM (London) / Radio Clapas 93.5FM (France) / 98.7FM (Singapore) / Lush FM (Singapore) / RSI International / 938 Live (Singapore) / YES 933 (Singapore) ++More!

Press+TV

TIME magazine / Pacha TV / Channel V / The Straits Times / Today / Lianhe Zaobao (cover story) / Seventeen / Giant Robot / Time Out Singapore / I.S. / iSh / FL.ag / Juice / Shift Japan / JUNK / KLue / The Star (KL) / 8 Days / Style / Urban / Arts Central TV ++More!

